

An Invitation for Parents to Participate in Autism Research

At the Autism & Developmental Disorders Lab at Simon Fraser University (in Vancouver, BC), we are interested in learning more about social development. The overall goal of our research is to work towards improving the social lives of individuals with ASD.

We are currently looking for parents to participate in an online research study investigating social skills in ASD. Parents of youth who have a diagnosis of an Autism Spectrum Disorder (e.g., Autism, Asperger's Syndrome, PDD-NOS), are verbal, and are between the ages of 11-18 are invited to participate.

Parents will be asked questions about their child's development and social strengths/difficulties during a brief phone interview as well as an online survey. As a small compensation for their time and effort, parents will be provided with $25.
